Let Nature Guide You

PROTELAN AG 11 (Potassium Undecylenoyl Hydrolyzed Wheat Protein), a natural derived mild and active molecule for performance personal care products.

The major benefits and applications are:

Dandruff regulation properties, substantive effect and texturing performance.

Helps to maintain overall skin balance.

Use in extremely mild anti-dandruff and conditioning products.

Improves foam formation, creaminess and volume.

PROTELAN AG 11 enhances the performance of anti-dandruff shampoos with the added advantages of extra mildness and lower toxicity potential than most traditional actives.

Green in every sense: Cognis APG®

Nearly every second adult view their skin as sensitive. That's why most consumers prefer personal care products that offer outstanding mildness, natural ingredients and a compatible sensory profile. Are your products delivering what the market now demands? With our green APG®, they can. APG® is a unique class of non-ionic surfactants, obtained from renewable raw materials such as coconut oil and starch. With its excellent mildness and foaming attributes, it offers exceptional performance – in facial, body and hair cleansing products, liquid soaps, baby shampoos and toothpaste.

Cognis is the world's largest manufacturer of the original APG® surfactant and has the longest history in production and application know-how. APG® will turn your formulation green – without any compromise in performance. The alkyl polyglucosides from Cognis are available under the Plantacare® and Plantaren® brands and can be purchased throughout the world with top-grade quality. And thanks to its natural provenance it has a perfect environmental footprint, too.

Cognis APG®, the original green surfactant.

Sun care

Our formulations special in this issue brings you some exciting new ideas for sun care products. If you find one or other of these formulations of particular interest you can easily download the details from our web site at www.cossma.com. The access codes that you will need are shown on the Internet button on this page. This month we bring you a total of 40 formulations from 20 different companies.

In February 2008 we will be focussing on formulations for interesting facial care products. In March we turn to skin cleansing formulations. All of the information published here has been carefully assembled, however neither the publishers nor the developers of these formulations can accept responsibility for their safety or accuracy.

Among the suggestions for rather more unusual formulations is surely the Sun Allergy SOS Spray from Rahn. Another is the rinse-off SPF shower cream from Orafti, which, assuming it works, is the ideal solution for those who hate rubbing cream onto themselves. There is also, in addition to sun protection lotions, gels and sprays, a wide range of daytime care products with SPF and self-tanning properties, as well as after-sun formulations and sun care shampoos.
