

Ingredients suppliers

Voilà! Here it is – our fully updated 2009 market survey of ingredients suppliers! In economically difficult times it is more important than ever to know who can supply which ingredients in order that, if necessary, new sources can be investigated. Our table shows at a glance the ingredients available from each supplier and what their specialities are.

This year in our alphabetical listing you will find the key data from 160 suppliers, from home and abroad. Our practical and easy-to-follow reference work makes it possible to see at a glance which ingredients suppliers specialise in which fields.

More than 75 percent of the companies listed are in fact producers of ingredients. More than 30 percent are distributors and more than 10 percent are manufacturers who also act as distributors for other producers. More than 70 percent are suppliers of active substances and more than 60 percent of the companies specialise in the supply of additives of various types. Over 40 percent offer an extensive range of ingredients including both actives and additives.

Whilst the trend towards natural plant-based products means that such ingredients are to be found in the portfolio of 80 percent of suppliers, nevertheless more than 50 percent have synthetic ingredients in their range. The number of suppliers of animal-based products is very low, at less than 15 percent. Anyone looking for suppliers of fragrances will find such products listed by 20 percent of the suppliers.

Is your company not listed in this survey? Then simply contact dorothea.michaelis@health-and-beauty.com to be included in next year's update.
